► Atlas de las Aves playeras del Perú sitios importantes para su conservación

El Perú es el segundo país con mayor diversidad de especies de aves, llegando a unas 1847 especies, de las cuales 105 son endémicas. Un número importante de ellas están en situación de amenaza, por alteraciones de su hábitat o por otros factores relacionados con las actividades humanas. El Atlas de las Aves Playeras del Perú elaborado por Nathan Senner y Fernando Angulo, se basa en censos a lo largo de toda la longitud de la costa peruana con la contribución de decenas de colaboradores. Este trabajo sirve como una línea base de referencia para determinar los lugares en el Perú que son más críticos para el bienestar de las aves playeras y para documentar el estado de sus poblaciones invernales ... more

Los 73,3 millones de hectáreas de bosques que existen en el Perú son fuente de vida. Regulan el ciclo del agua y contribuyen al equilibrio del clima en la Tierra al regular, absorber y fijar el carbono de la atmósfera. Son bancos mundiales de diversidad biológica y genética.
